

We (PetAg) have been making milk replacers for over 80 years and this critical nutrition has helped save hundreds of thousands of newborn animals. In connection with our Mission of Saving Little Lives, we also donate products regularly to shelters, rescues, rehabbers and others because we truly believe in our mission.

It is important to emphasize that the issue some are experiencing is limited to feeding the current form of Esbilac powder to some smaller species, such as wildlife. The current form of Esbilac continues to be satisfactory for puppies. There has been no change in ingredients of Esbilac, but we did discover the form of dicalcium being used was not as finely milled to be absorbed by the wide variety of smaller species for which Esbilac is being used other than puppies. This ingredient was sourced from the same U.S. supplier we have always used. We have been able to secure supply of the more finely milled dicalcium in order that the product may be better absorbed by infant species being fed Esbilac powder. This form of Esbilac with the more finely milled ingredient should be available in 30-60 days.

In the meantime, we suggest using Goats Milk Esbilac which has a different type of calcium in it that is finely milled and more readily absorbed. All of our products are manufactured in the United States and most ingredients are also sourced in the US.

The reason the Made in the USA symbol has changed to Crafted in the USA is to comply with the Federal Trade Commission rules. In order to remain compliant with these rule changes, our label states “crafted in the USA”

We appreciate and support the effort to save all little lives. We are thrilled and inspired by so many people that care about and are committed to saving neonate kittens, puppies, wildlife and others.
